

PRISON AWAITS PLOTTERS AGAINST ARMY SELECTION

SECRET SERVICE MEN WARN DRAFT FOES FOR LAST TIME ON EVE OF REGISTRATION DAY

Volunteers Swell Ranks of "Flying Squadron" to Jail Traitors and Slackers and Quell Any Disorders That May Happen Tomorrow

THIS WILL HELP YOU TO FIND WHERE YOU MUST REGISTER

THE polling place of your election division is the place at which you must register tomorrow, if you're a male between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, inclusive. Don't you know where to go? Try one of these:

1. Ask your neighbor where he voted last election. 2. Inquire at a police station. 3. Ask a policeman. 4. Call "Electrical Bureau" on either telephone, ask for Room 630, and when you get that connected find out today where you must register tomorrow.

The United States Secret Service, increased by volunteer operatives to a force of 1000, is busy today calling on every anti-registration agitator in the city.

Until 9 o'clock tomorrow night the anti-conscription agitators will be kept under surveillance of Secret Service agents. At that hour every one of them of draft age who has failed to register will be arrested.

Tomorrow will find the 1000 Secret Service men organized as a "Flying Squadron." The organization is being perfected today by Frank Garbarino, head of the Department of Justice work in this city.

Scores of automobiles have been contributed for the day by men and women, and Garbarino. These will be parked outside the Federal Building, ready to rush men to any part of the city, should any kind of an uprising—large or small—make it necessary for Federal operatives to be present.

The volunteer Government agents include lawyers, businessmen, merchants and many others. Their ranks are being recruited today, and it is possible tomorrow will find one of them as a Government representative at every one of the city's registration places.

Following many inquiries from members of the National Guard, the EVENING LEADER obtained from Provost Marshal General Crowder a definite ruling on the question of their registration tomorrow. General Crowder said:

It makes no difference whether the guardsmen are in the Federal service or not, they are NOT required under the law to register.

"Duly organized or recognized forces subject under other laws of the United States to be called or drafted into service are NOT required to register."

Advance registration, which has been conducted in City Hall for the benefit of men who expect to be out of the city tomorrow came to an end late this afternoon.

Every Philadelphia male resident of draft age—twenty-one to thirty years inclusive—who had not registered up to that time must remain in Philadelphia tomorrow until he has registered. The reregistration period has ended.

Called Day of Rejoicing "Tomorrow marked an epoch in the progress of the United States and ought to be recognized as a day of general rejoicing," said Judge Bonniwell, in addressing the crowd in his courtroom when he announced that the criminal and civil divisions of the Municipal Court would be closed on registration day.

"The men deprived of the right to register by age limitations should constitute themselves volunteers for the assistance and encouragement of those privileged to volunteer, and the men of the selective ages should feel that they are honored by being made of the first class among the defenders of the honor of the United States."

Officials of the Bell Telephone Company and the Western Electric Company were reluctant today with regard to orders sent to their employees to claim exemption when they register tomorrow.

Francis Fisher Kane, United States Attorney, branded as "un-American" the action of the two concerns.

"It is fantastical for the companies to give their workmen such orders," he said. "It is for the United States Government and not the executive heads of utility companies to decide what classes of men shall be exempted."

"Another Federal officer in the Federal Court today was asked to aid Cleveland in its long fight to collect taxes from John D. Rockefeller. Acting for P. C. O'Brien, county treasurer of Cuyahoga County, Rufus S. Day filed a petition asking for a review of the case by the high court.

LAREDO, Tex., June 4. More than 1000 persons collected about the international foot bridge here today trying to cross over into Mexico.

Seven hundred of these were Mexican citizens, who were allowed to pass, but 300 were held up by immigration officials pending examination of passports.

The exodus was due to fear among the Mexicans that if they remained in the United States on registration day they would be conscripted for service in the United States army.

PITTSBURGH, June 4. Charges of treason were made this afternoon against Morris Turner, twenty-one years old; Abraham Kehring, nineteen; Abraham Karp, nineteen; and Antonio Remius, four of the men arrested last night for circulating anti-conscription literature and delivering soap-box speeches against the draft.

Several more arrests were made by the police today in their efforts to stop circulation of the anti-draft literature. The round-up, which brought the total of arrests here to thirty, included Walter Hodge, twenty-seven years old; Walter Hoge, twenty-four, and Fred Roth, twenty-nine.

Hodge was previously arrested with seven others in a raid on an anti-conscription league meeting in Socialist headquarters. He probably will be held this time without bail.

Of nine others arrested last night and today the most of them were foreigners—Lithuanians and Poles being in the majority. Several were making speeches on the South Side and distributing their pamphlets among those who stopped to hear them.

SEVEN ARE INDICTED IN ANTI-DRAFT PLOT NEW YORK, June 4. Seven indictments charging "conspiracy to interfere with registration" were returned by the Federal Grand Jury sitting in extra session here today.

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL SHIBE PARK, June 4.—Young Noyes made a noise like a drummer and beat it for the showers in the third inning of today's game with the White Sox.

The chi boys romped off to a three-run lead in the opening round, when "Happy" Felch slugged one into the bleachers with a pair of clubmates conspicuous on the benches.

Another tally was added in the third on Felch's sacrifice fly, which fell safe for a hit when Grover and W. Johnson did the Alphonse-Gaston act.

Jing Johnson resumed hurling for the local talent in the fourth. Reb Russell was the boxer that tried to keep down the Athletics' hitting pace—and he succeeded.

FIRST INNING Leibold fouled to Bates. Weaver got second on Bates's wild throw to first. Witt threw out Eddie Collins. Jackson singled to center, scoring Weaver. Felch drove a home run in the bleachers, scoring Jackson ahead of him. Witt threw out Gandil. Three runs, two hits, one error. Witt was out. Collins to Gandil. Strunk fled to Jackson. MARCONI SEES WIRELESS AS EYE OF MARS

Great Italian Inventor Declares Its Worth Proved in Great War

HERE WITH COMMISSION Points Out Vast Uses in Artillery Operations and Infantry Movement

WASHINGTON, June 4. Guglielmo Marconi, senator in the Italian Parliament, captain in the Italian navy, and inventor of the wireless, today gave his first interview since arriving in the United States with the Royal Italian Mission.

Naturally he talked about wireless, its importance in the present war and its future. He is not one of those ready-to-be-interviewed men who pour out their thoughts fluently.

"It took much persuading to make him talk at all. I asked him first what he thought the greatest single accomplishment of the wireless had been in the present war. He said instantly:

"Its use by aeroplanes. The wireless has revolutionized artillery action. Heretofore the gunner did not know whether his shot landed accurately or not. Guns are frequently placed in such a way that the hills intervening cut off direct observation. But nowadays a big gun might be placed on low ground and actually shoot over an elevation to a low ground on the other side and be sure of its aim and range. For the wireless constitutes the eyes of the gun. Aviators remain in the air above the positions that is attacked. They watch each shot. As it falls they report back by wireless whether it is too far or too short. In less than a minute after the shell has burst, the commanding officer of the artillery battery at the point of origin has a report of the shot fired by each of his guns.

"AID TO INFANTRY "The wireless instruments work well from aeroplanes," Marconi was asked. "Yes, very well. The radius is short and communication is perfect."

"What has been the experience of infantry forces with the wireless?" "The wireless has been invaluable to the infantry," said the inventor, enthusiastically. "Thousands of thousands of field stations are set up along a battle front. When a force gets into a tight position and needs help, it can easily call for reinforcements. On the extended fronts, each unit can keep in close touch with the other nowadays by wireless. Think how uninformed one part of an army used to be with its flank; think of the delays that couriers caused in the past. Now some idea of how the wireless has revolutionized infantry warfare."

"The inventor talks perfect English, slang and all. His long residence in England accounts for that. He is slender, youthful looking, rather English in appearance, too. I sat with him in the parlor of the Leiter residence where the Italian Mission is quartered. Signor Marconi had just recovered from a week's spell of indigestion and looked a trifle pale. But his eyes beamed as he talked about the wireless.

"USE BY SUBMARINE "What can the wireless do for the submarine and against it?" I asked him. "The submarine couldn't really be effective," he said, "without the wireless. It must communicate with a base to get orders or to learn of the routes taken by ships that it is seeking."

"Can a submarine use its wireless while submerged?" "No, it must come to the surface to catch the air waves or at least stick its periscope sufficiently above water to project the antennae. Of course, this is dangerous for the submarine, particularly if your own wireless is more powerful than the enemy's. Is that a practice in the air?" "No, there is really not very much of it."

STINGER-DOWDY ROW "AMICABLY ADJUSTED" Harmony Chorus Raises Paean of Peace After Mix-Up at Broad and Chestnut Streets

I received no report, so the matter must have been amicably adjusted.—Superintendent of Police Robinson.

The matter was amicably adjusted.—Traffic Captain William B. Mills.

The matter was amicably adjusted.—Lieutenant George Stinger.

The matter was amicably adjusted.—Policeman Percy Dowdy.

This harmony chorus was the sum total result today of the Stinger-Dowdy mix-up at Broad and Chestnut streets, Saturday night when George Stinger, Jr., twenty-two-year-old son of Lieutenant Stinger, of the police boat Reburn, swapped jolts with Traffic Policeman Dowdy under the eyes of his father, and fathered son was taken to the Central police station by the resolute "copper," Stinger, Jr., was arrested, but—the matter was amicably adjusted. Everybody agreed that Stinger, Jr., had been a bit too hasty.

No blows were struck, according to Lieutenant Stinger. He and his son were in a motorcar that was grazed by another car, he said, whereupon he stopped and asked Dowdy if he had seen the accident. Stinger, Jr., and Dowdy exchanged words and grappled, he said. He accompanied his son to the station, where the young man was released.
